Hope Receives More Letters From Soldiers

All Express Thanks for Hospitality of This City During Maneuvers

The following additional letters have been received by the Civilian Military Council expressing soldiers' thanks for the treatment given the Second Army during the maneuvers here in August, Talbot Field, Jr., chairman, announced Tuesday:

"We, the members of this organization, wish to express our thanks and appreciation for the hospitality and friendship shown to us by the citizens of your fair community. The Members of Company 'D'.

"SERGEANT PAUL KUFFEL
"CO. 'D', 132ND INFANTRY"

And an anonymous soldier writes:
"I am one of the many soldiers to visit Hope and I would like to express my appreciation for all that you have done for us. Thanks again.
"A SOLDIER OF THE 35TH DIVISION"

And this letter from a mother:
"I have just received a letter from my son in the 27th Division, wherein he described the various facilities you have made available for the added enjoyment and convenience of the boys while bivouacked in your city. The showers and recreation halls have been a blessing to them. As his mother, please accept my deepest gratitude for the thoughtfulness behind your program. To those mothers and their daughters who so willingly have given of their time and precious acknowledgment and prayers for your future welfare. The City of Hope will always remain a remembrance of good will.
"This had went off at the tender age of 17—so you can readily understand the feeling of myself and his sister and brothers. Thank you again.

A Mother's Letter
And from another mother:
"Recently I received a letter from my son who is a sergeant in the 122nd Field Artillery. He tells me of the wonderful hospitality shown to the boys.
"In behalf of the mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts of the 122nd Field Artillery I wish to express my sincere appreciation and thanks to the people of Arkansas.
"I do believe it is the humane thing to do. If more cities would follow your wonderful example it would help the morale of the boys, and would make the loved ones at home more at ease.
"Again, my deepest appreciation and thanks for your good work.

Says Britain Has Taken Air Initiative

Admits Germans Still Have Plenty of Power in Land Operations

LONDON — (AP)—Britain has seized the initiative from the Germans in the air, has cut shipping losses two-thirds within the past three months and has several times considered invasion of the German-dominated continent, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons Tuesday in the most optimistic war review he has yet given.

"Adolf Hitler is suffering from a serious shortage in the air," Churchill said "but for the rest he still retains the initiative and we have not had the force to take it from him."

Churchill thus did not rule out the possibility of a British invasion of the continent remarking that "Hitler does not tell us his plans and therefore I see no reason why we should tell him ours."

"In every respect except in the air," he said "the Germans are so strong that Britain's own peril of invasion is not past and only the enormous conversion of U. S. factories to produce war materials can keep Russia on the firing line indefinitely."

"Many of our supplies have already been dispatched to Russia," he said mentioning oil, rubber, tin and other valuable materials, and "it may be that transportation rather than willingness or ability will keep them from Russia."

"To keep Russia in the fight sacrifices of the most serious and extreme kinds will be necessary by the British people," he declared.

Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky leaned over the diplomatic gallery rail intent on every word of the report and cheering at each reference to the Soviet Union.

Looking Forward
"We now are within the measurable distance of an immense flow of American new building which with our own production we look to carry out 1942."

However, he warned, "Hitler has told us nothing since his speech in February and we don't know how far he will attempt to penetrate the vast lands of Russia in the face of violent Russian defenses or how long his people will endure their losses or again whether he will decide to stand on the defensive and exploit the territory

Throwing the Light on Uncle Sam's Huge New Tax Measure

Second of Series of Articles on How Taxes Affect Citizens

By LUCRECE HUDGINS

AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON — The job of paying for defense takes pennies as well as dollars.
Before this war is over you will have paid out so many pennies that the mere mention of a game of penny-ante poker will cause your face to whiten.

Every time you buy a phonograph record or a pack of cards or a glass of wine after Oct. 1 you will throw in a few extra pennies to help pay for a two-ocean navy, a drafted army and a super air force.

These pennies will be taken from you largely in the form of hidden taxes, so-called because they are hidden in the price of a purchased article.

But look sharply and you'll get an idea of the wallop the new hidden taxes can land out.

Tax in Small Doses
Let's say it's your birthday and you and the wife and another couple are going to have a big time of it. First you'll have cocktails, then a show, and you intend to wind up the evening in a night club.

You buy a quart for the cocktails and after paying the price of the liquor you add $1.00 for Uncle Sam.

Then you go to a show which costs you $3 a seat. For four people you throw in an additional $1.20 for the government. Then to the night club, and when you pay the $20 bill another dollar has to be thrown in for the little man who isn't there. That means you've paid $3.20 during the evening in hidden taxes. Re-

ABOVE: Frenchmen still defy the Nazi conqueror. They attack Germans, sabotage industry. Photographer's caption on the dramatic photo above described the figure in the center merely as "a French patriot." The scene is the Vincennes military camp, Paris. Two Germans blindfold the condemned man, who is lashed to a pole. At left, a firing squad stands at attention. When the officer at right commands, they will kill the Frenchman.

RIGHT: The tragedy is over. The Frenchman's body slumps—ropes prevent it from falling. The German officer turns away, his job done. Reprisal executions of Frenchmen are increasing in occupied France. The Nazi explanation: "Aggression against Germans."

Holt's Opinion to Pilkinton Gives Extra Day

Attorney General Rules Deadline Is Oct. 1 Instead of Sept. 30

The deadline for payment of poll taxes, which permit citizens to vote in state and local elections next summer, is midnight Wednesday, October 1, instead of Tuesday, September 30—thereby giving one more day of grace to those who have not yet qualified as voters for 1942.

Authority for this announcement is a letter written September 20 by Attorney General Jack Holt at Little Rock to State Senator James H. Pilkinton of Hope. Senator Pilkinton released the attorney general's letter for publication here Tuesday morning.

Sheriff and Collector Clarence E. Baker said at noon Tuesday that 4,700 poll tax receipts have been issued for Hempstead county thus far, against a total of 5,200 in 1939, the last pre-election year. Mr. Baker said it was certain the 1941 total would beat 1939, as last-minute payers are jamming the collector's office Tuesday, with an even greater crowd expected on the final day, Wednesday. Following is the letter Attorney General Holt wrote Senator Pilkinton:

HON James H. Pilkinton
Hope, Arkansas

Your letter of September 19, 1941, received.

You ask whether the dead line for paying poll tax receipts expires at midnight on September 30 or October 1 of this year.

On September 1, 1939, I advised Honorable W. L. Maynor, Tax Assessor at Ozark, Arkansas, as follows: "A poll tax, both assessed and paid not later than midnight of October 1, 1939, in my opinion will qualify a person to vote in the 1940 primary. Of course it is understood that he must possess the other qualifications of a voter."

On September 23, 1939, I was officially asked by Honorable Jim Goff, the State Comptroller, about the expiration of the time for paying poll taxes in the year 1939. The matter was reconsidered in view of the fact that October 1, 1939, fell on Saturday. We considered the laws and cases relative to the matter and decided that in 1939, owing to the fact that October 1 fell on Sunday, the dead line for paying poll taxes and assessing delinquent poll taxes expired at midnight September 30.

It is my opinion, therefore, that, except in such years as the ones when October 1 falls on Sunday, the dead line for paying poll taxes and assessing delinquent poll taxes expires at midnight October 1.

Very truly yours,
Jack Holt, Attorney General
September 20, 1941

Italian Attack Is Minimized

British Assert Only Little Damage to Convoy

LONDON — (AP)—The British admiralty said Tuesday an aerial torpedo hit on the British battleship Nelson, the loss of a fighter plane and the crew, and the sinking of a motor vessel constituted the only cost of moving a convoy through the central Mediterranean under a week-end running attack by Italian planes. Thirteen raiders were declared to have been destroyed.

The Italian said Monday that three British cruisers and at least three merchantmen were sunk and a battleship, believed to have been the Nelson, damaged.

A torpedo launched by an Italian raider Saturday slightly reduced the speed of the 16-year-old Nelson, it was said, but asserted there were no casualties in a crew of 1,360 men.

All Around Washington

Rep. Hoffman Believes in Illustrious Lectures

WASHINGTON—Around the town: Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich.) believes in illustrating his lectures. Delivering a 15-minute denunciation of the President's foreign policy on the floor of the house, Hoffman came on the matter of flags.

Those who follow the President, he said, are asking us to scrap the flag which is a symbol of independence. And thereupon he whipped out a little original American flag with 13 stars all in a circle.

In its place, Hoffman continued, they are asking us to substitute the new "Hore-Belisha flag"—the "flag of union now." With that, Hoffman raised a fishing pole, on the end of which a Union Jack was flying over the Stars and Stripes.

It Can Happen Here

There's nothing like a challenge to raise the dander of the U. S. Marine. A Marine officer read a boast from Berlin that a detachment of Nazi parachute troops had landed and marched 40 miles in 20 hours. The boast was passed along to Lt. P. W. Densman, with the Marine Corps parachute detachment at Quantico, Va. The lieutenant took it up with the men, asked for volunteers and got so many that he had to turn away customers to hold the ground down to 32.

Carrying packs, extra shoes and combat weapons, these huskies hopped off from Linton Hall, 40 miles from Quantico. They beat their way across country, below historic Manassas, and made Quantico 12 hours and 30 minutes after starting time. Every man jack of them, the lieutenant said, finished on his feet and was ready for combat.

Helpful Congress

Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, in an unheralded speech to 12 "business consultants" who have been taking a course in the relationship of government to business, handed out the service for all concerned if they would carry home the message to business men that they should know congress better.

"As you go into the field and come in contact with businessmen," Jones said, "urge them to become better acquainted with their representatives in Congress and talk over their problems with them. Nine years' experience in Washington has taught me that congress earnestly tries to understand the problems of business and wants to be helpful!"

Factual Trivia

Rep. Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge, Mass., one of the deans of the house, put one of the capilla's newsmen on his blacklist. It happened when Rep. Frank Crowther of New York took the floor and paid a nice little tribute to Congressman Treadway on the anniversary of Mr. Treadway's birth. Reporters inquired later of the venerable gentleman from Massachusetts what birthday it was. Mr. Treadway had forgotten. The reporters searched the congressional directory. There they found only biographical information supplied by Mr. Treadway and it didn't include his age.

All the reporters but one gave up. This demon for factual trivia stayed with his problem throughout the day and into the night. Some time before dawn, he was able to shout "eureka!" In a 1926 copy of "Who's

Who, he found recorded that Mr. Treadway was born in 1867—that Mr. Crowther's eulogy marked the Congressman's 74th birthday. The only thing the reporter got out of it was Mr. Treadway's undying ingratitude.

EXPONENTS of Italian Fascism often support its program by saying: "Mussolini is the man who made the trains in Italy run on time." The government itself points with pride to the way in which it brought order out of chaos in the Italian state railroads.

The stamp above, which shows a wood-burning engine and a streamlined electric locomotive, was issued in 1939 to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Italian railroads. It emphasizes the keen pride Italians have in the progress of their railroads.

Before the war made the railroads military supply systems, the government had converted a heavy liability into a money-making asset. There was a time when Italian railroads lost as much as a billion lire annually.

How to Marry in Haste

Lunch Hour Weddings Are Now in Vogue

By HELEN FORREST HALL, AP Fashion Editor

Sally works in New York, where time is limited these brisk days and the lunch hour has to be long enough for a wedding.

But young couples, who like Sally and her Jack are getting married before the boys are called to their country's service, have worked out a simple plan to get the most out of those noon hours.

Here's an outline of the way our typical couple speeds the marriage matter along—one that could be followed in almost any other city:

Monday—When Jack's number is called, Sally (who has known for a long time that he's the man for her) goes out to shop. It isn't like in mother's day, when a large troussseau was assembled with leisure, and possibly with plenty of money. Sally's clothes must be soft and breezy, but she'll be wearing them later to the office and during Jack's fiançailles. She goes to her pet budget shop—likely to the junior-miss section.

Tuesday—Jack takes Sally to shop for her rings. She wears her new black wool dress with mandarin shoulder band of red to match the lining and arrow trim of her black wool cape. Her black felt hat is appropriately heart-shaped, red edged.

Yes, nowadays young people go to gether to choose the rings—but the package always is wrapped and handed to Jack. Tonight in her parlor Sally will be surprised and thrilled when he makes the proper presentation of her diamond solitaire.

Wednesday—Time to get the license. Sally looks perky and cute in her two-piece green wool. The long-torso jumper blouse has slot pockets and white linen collar and cuffs; the skirt is plented all around. Her hat matches in color—but contrasts in fabric, for it's velveteen, so new-looking with wool.

Jack is pretty proud, but in spite of the excitement he's remembered to bring along the health certificates. At the Municipal Building they fill out a questionnaire, and while they sit at a table to do it, they don't hold hands! They'll be plenty of time for long looks and sweet smiles later, while standing in line to wait for the clerk.

Finally at "the bars," the clerk administers the oath attesting that what they've written is true (so help them!) Jack, pull out that $2!

Thursday—If Jack has to rush to the aid of his country, the wedding may take place at City Hall Chapel—24 hours after getting the license. It'll cost Jack another $2, but a glimpse of Sally dismisses all material thought.

There she is, in a blue velveteen pill-box hat and veil with lighter blue silk trim. Jack casts a glance at her corsage of white violets and nearly overlooks her dull blue velveteen suit. Her soft dress has yoke and pockets of dark gray.

New York boasts no justice of the peace, but Mr. Hines, first deputy clerk, performs the marriage ceremony as soon as the waiting list is cleared. One wedding is never telegraphed into the next—too much danger of shuffling brides, they say!

Inside the chapel, Mr. Hines joins the couples' hands and the wedding band is slipped onto Sally's finger. Sally removes her diamond temporary-ly, so the matching ring can go on first, nearest her heart.

Saturday—If Jack hadn't had to leave, and Sally preferred a church wedding, as most young people do, we might see the two, bridesmaids or witnesses in company, married instead at The Little Church Around The Corner. Sally would have worn her dove-gray princess dress. Of wool, its full skirt is banded in darker velveteen like the lover's knot set in at the neckline, and like her tiny hat with bow. # Flying Field Shrinks

RANDOLPH FIELD, Texas (P)—The 2,300-acre airfield here at Randolph Field was too big for the 700 aviation cadets to get any practice in night landings. It was too simple for the pilots to cut the throttle and go into a glide, because they couldn't miss. So the training officers have, with amber lights, marked a landing strip of 3,200 by 400 feet, and now the cadets really have something to shoot at.

What! You never served BAKED HAM the KARO way?

Say! If you want to give your baked ham glorious flavor, "dress" it with a Karo glaze. Half-hour before your ham is done, take it from the oven, strip off the fat, and "glaze" it this way:

KARO GLAZE FOR HAM

1/2 cup Karo (blue label) 1/2 cup water
2 tsp. clear ham fat 2 tsp. vinegar

Pour Karo, water, vinegar and ham fat in saucepan; bring to boil; continue cooking 10 minutes. Remove from heat; let cool slightly before pouring over ham. Continue to cook ham for 1/2 hour, basting several times.

Karo adds food value as well as flavor to meals. It's rich in dextrins, maltose and DEXTROSE, food-energy sugar.

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CASE OF JUDY ALLEN

CHAPTER XX

THE brighter light did not come on as Judy hurried to get her brown calico dress fastened around her. Her eyes were dark smudges in her face and the russet hair gleamed faintly in the meager outside bulb.

"Phil," she called softly, forgetting that she might sing, dance or yell because there were no other feminine guests of the city tonight.

The man who stood behind the matron was not Phil. He was a tall young man in a brown aviator's suit. There was no laughter in his eyes now and his firm chin looked weary.

"I imagine the sky was nice to-night, Sandy," Judy addressed her visitor. "My star patch wasn't bad."

"Would you like to enter Miss Allen's cell?" the accommodating matron asked. "Bein' as you are to be married, I don't see why you shouldn't be together."

The matron unlocked the door of Judy's cell and flung it back. Sandy closed it immediately. "I'm afraid you've got the wrong man, Fanny. I had the same idea once upon a time." His lips twisted slightly. "She got away from me."

"You mean she jumped from an airplane to escape you?" the woman's voice queried. "Then what was the man like that she wanted?"

"A ten-minute egg. Not good on toast," Sandy supplied. "You've spoiled everything now," Judy answered. "Think of my job!"

"Your job?" She was aware that his eyes narrowed, tried to pick out her features in the dusky cell, gave up. When he spoke again his voice was gentle, disappointed, impersonal. "I thought you stepped into the empty spaces because you wanted to save your marriage after I'd made such a mess of everything. I didn't understand your by-line was so important to you."

"Sandy, you're wrong—" "Never mind, Judy. But I'm rather glad I caught on in time. I'd want any wife I claimed to wear my name. I'll get you out of this, anyway, and let you trot back to Phillip."

He turned swiftly and Judy heard the outer door at the entrance close after him. The matron had hurried ahead to open the heavy gate.

LEFT alone, Judy did not remove the calico dress. She wrapped herself in the blanket and laid down on her cot.

She looked at the slim watch set in blue and white sapphires, a birthday gift from Phil. She had intended to remove it from her wrist but Miss Mattie's arrival had interrupted. The watch had stopped in the high altitude. She would not know that it was morning until the matron came again.

Meantime a rat ran around the cell and escaped through a hole. She could hear it scratching somewhere near and moved closer to the wall.

Oh, this was a thousand times worse than falling into space on your back! When she reached her father and Phil, this jail would apologize. The rat ran back and this time her scream was so terrified, so frenzied, that steps came running.

"What's bein' pulled off?" the warden's huge voice asked. "Another drunk seein' purple pigs?"

"Purple pigs! It's a rat!" Judy explained. "Lock me up anywhere! Anywhere! I'll die here! I know I will!"

"It's just Peter, a nice fellow. We all know him around here. When you get your breakfast he'll be mighty pleased if you do some dividing." The round warden chuckled and walked away.

"Help! Help! You dumb, inefficient..." Judy's voice stopped. What did it matter that she yelled? Nobody cared.

"JUDY! Judy! Judy darling!"

That was Sandy's voice. That was Sandy, too, trying to break down the gateway leading into the police reception room.

She fainted away then, quickly, completely, and did not regain consciousness until the matron came with a small platter. Common sense told Judy that she had been out a matter of seconds, but the strange whirling in her head, the dimness that tried to discover where she was and why, lengthened the seconds into a long vista.

"Give somebody named Peter the food," she murmured. "And let me wait some place else."

Her request was granted. She was placed in a wider cell which was shut off from Peter's domain.

She was given fresh water with which to wash her face. "Miss Judy Allen, associate editor of Under Twenty, that popular fashion magazine for girls, is now seen splashing cold water on her face," she mimicked, following outlines from her magazine's advertising.

"Miss Allen was in jail at the time the picture was made."

The matron came later with more information. The Police Court was meeting and Judy was to appear.

"Just as soon as I change to my white dress," she answered and began to take off the brown one. "But why?"

"Haven't you observed, my dear, that men fall for the fragile and helpless? Let me wear ridgeline clothes and I'd get two months in your jug."

Talking like this kept up her courage. Policemen, as she knew them, were kind. They chatted with her when she passed them at certain corners. If any of her friends knew where she was—well, they would know most any minute now.

SLIM, very young, not half as brave as she looked, hobbling along on one foot, Judy went with the matron. "My father is also holding court today," she said. "I'll ask the judge to let me telephone him."

She knew that Sandy's face looked ill with worry as she passed him. He leaned to say, "Chin up, Judy. I'm taking the blame. I'll take the rap—What a crazy fool I was!"

His face was stern, cold, critical. "You planned such a nice jaunt, Sandy," Judy heard her voice answering. "Too bad your plans miscarried."

If he thought he could tie life into knots and blow them apart, he might as well begin to learn better right now.

Then she heard her name. "Case of Municipal Airport versus Judy Allen."

their glib discussion of munition manufacture techniques.

From there on, however, the game developed into the hoary old "race-horse swindle." With variations, this is a simple little drama in which one or more of the con men appears to win a huge sum of money which cannot be collected until bank credits are established. The victim, either through promises of a big split in the profits or merely because of friendship, is persuaded to put up part of the sum, which is the last he ever sees of his money—or his new-found friends.

In this instance, the con ring collected $30,000. In another similar case, in which paving contracts in an adjoining state were used as bait, a gang got $200,000.

Oil Swindle More Refined
The race-horse swindle doesn't have all the refinements of the oil lease swindle. In this case, the victim is offered a generous sum for the lease of his land, and an option is taken. A confederate shows up a day or so later and offers a far greater sum.

The victim then pays over a tidy fee to get out of his option and, of course, the lease never is executed.

There are other con game swindles, but in the upper brackets they all add up to the same thing, promises of great profits for the "temporary use" of lesser sums.

The con man is the aristocrat of criminals. Suavely, ready wit, an outer personality that begets confidence are the tools of his trade. And because his victim so often is ashamed to confess that he has been duped or fears to reveal that he has lost large sums, the con man sometimes can operate for years before the police are even aware of his activities.

However, in the seven years since the FBI has had its new legal bulldog against the men who work the sucker racket, Director J. Edgar Hoover's boys have built up a sweet file on the big-timers in the con game.

In the case of the munitions manufacturer, it was only 24 hours after he laid his story before the FBI that all the principals in the little show had been identified—and the hunt was on.

There's a bright side even for school children—only nine months till vacation.

South Is Map's Bright Spot

Adkins Asserts at Annual Cotton Picking Contest

BLYTHEVILLE—(P)—"The south is rapidly becoming the number one economic bright spot on the map," Governor Homer M. Adkins declared Tuesday.

Addressing a crowd gathered to witness the annual national cotton picking contest Adkins spoke as some 200 pickers from 11 states started down heavily laden rows of specially cultivated fields for the national championship and $2,000 in prize money.

Adkins said he found greater satisfaction than in evidence through industrial development throughout the cotton region.

"Once upon a time the south was called the number one economic problem of the nation, whether it was or wasn't—I want to say today that the south is rapidly becoming the number one economic bright spot on the map and the people of the south are responsible."

Bad Grab Fans Blaze

HELENA, Mont. (P)—Russell Croff, filling station attendant, discovered a small blaze beside a heating stove in the building. He grabbed a nearby bucket filled with crystal fluid, believing it was water, and tossed it over the flames. It turned out to be high test gasoline. Croff will recover. The inside of the building was badly burned.

Zanies Chop at Pillars of Propriety

HOLLYWOOD — Interviewing two comedians at the same time is something like trying to do the rumba with Annie Sheridan while fencing with Basil Rathbone. Anyway, it's exhausting, especially if the comedians happen to be a couple of sex-hurled-quers named Red Skelton and Rags Ragland.

It was not a planned interview. I have known better than that since spending an afternoon with Groucho and Harpo Marx and later discovering that I didn't have a line I'd dare try to put into a newspaper. This Skelton-Ragland encounter was just something that could happen to anybody on a sound stage, like getting bearded by a falling air lamp.

The picture is "Panama Hattie" and the director is Norman McLeod. A comedy-maker and ordinarily a pretty funny guy himself, McLeod now wears dark circles under his eyes and has sunk into a morose and wary

FBI Interested in Many Things

Bureau Has Cracked Down on Many Big 'Con Rings'

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — You would think from reading the front pages that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is not interested these days in anything but spy and sabotage rings—but it is.

Seven years ago, congress put into the hands of the FBI a potent weapon against big-time confidence men. It was the National Stolen Property Act, which provides punishment up to ten years and fines up to $10,000 for interstate transportation of any sum in excess of $5,000 obtained by theft or the "con game." Since then, the FBI has cracked down on some half dozen big "con" rings, one of which was declared cleaned up just the other day with the arrest in Manassas, N. J., of a suspect in an elaborate "race-horse swindle."

With national defense billions on the loose and factories springing up in many states, and huge contracts often falling into the laps of communities that have been doing only business as usual for years, opportunities for the con man have been multiplied a thousand-fold.

The Late Sir Mark

Already the FBI has a case in which the victim was a retired munitions manufacturer. His confidence was gained through an imposing person with a British accent, who was introduced as Sir Mark Webster Jenkinson, "financial director" of Vickers Company, Ltd., London. The victim even took the precaution of checking a volume on the British peerage. Sir Mark was there all right, but what the edition didn't show was that the real Sir Mark had been dead nearly a year. The proposition made to the victim was that he was to take an executive post in a big new factory. Conferences were held in several cities and minute details of the con men never slipping once in wooden attitude about public relations. The other day he offered a studio press agent a story for the local papers. He'd attended a big party the night before. It went on until well past dawn, with the neighbors screaming dire threats, everybody getting thrown in the swimming pool and three carloads of police finally arriving. The agent had an awful time explaining to Ragland that wasn't quite the type of event the movie industry likes publicized.

For laughs off the set, Rags goes around with a flutter-brained cutie named Suzanne Rideway. He says he took her to a concert at the Hollywood Bowl the other night, and as they inched their way up the ramp with the throng she remarked: "Now I know why nobody ever comes here; it's too crowded."

Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Is it good manners to mention names in a conversation that could be overheard by strangers?
2. Is it good manners to ridicule a religious so different from your own impresses you as being absurd?
3. If a man asks a question of a stranger, must he raise his hat as he does so?
4. Is it rude for a woman to wait until she is actually on a street car or bus to start looking in her bag for her fare?
5. Is it rude for one entering a bus to attempt to do so before all the passengers wishing to alight are off the bus?

What would you say if—
An acquaintance says: "Good morning, how are you?"
(a) Say, "Oh, I'm not feeling so well today."
(b) Say, "Very well, thank you?"
Answers
1. No.
2. No. Keep your opinion to yourself. Better yet, try to understand what that particular religion offers its followers.
3. Yes.
4. Yes. One should have his fare ready when he boards a bus or street car.
5. Yes.
Best "What Would You Do" solution—(b). It is not good manners to complain about one's health.

Clubs

Oak Grove
The Oak Grove Home Demonstration Club met Monday, September 22, at the home of Mrs. Cecil Woodul with nine members present answering the roll call by telling if your child has hot school lunches.
The devotional was led by the hostess, Miss Fletcher, who with us and gave some discussions on food and feed campaigns and getting in respect for certificates to be given each farm family who has completed their food and feed record. Buying saving stamps was another discussion of the afternoon. Miss Fletcher also gave some suggestions on what kind of exhibits to take to the fair. One was chosen and the fair committee suggested we would have a meeting and make necessary plans. Miss Fletcher also gave the list of prizes and different kinds of exhibits to be entered.
After games and refreshments the meeting adjourned to meet with Miss Anna and Audrey Ross for October meeting.

General Rules

- All general rules and department rules will apply.
- All articles and animals must be entered with the one in charge of the various departments in the name of the owner or agent.
- Entries must be in place during period shown at the beginning of each department to be eligible for premium.
- No animal or article will be entered in more than one department, or compete for more than one premium except grand champion awards.
- Premiums will be limited to exhibitors who live in Hempstead County except ribbons may be awarded to adjoining counties.
- No animal or article exhibited may be removed or disarranged except as shown at the beginning of each department.
- No premium will be awarded on articles not listed in this premium catalog.
- No animal or article deemed unworthy will be awarded a premium. In case there is no competition by another exhibitor, only one prize may be awarded and it one-half premium.
- Premiums will be designated as follows: First, Blue Ribbon; Second, Red Ribbon; Third, White Ribbon; Grand Champion, Purple Ribbon.
- In no event shall the Hempstead County Fair Officers, Directors, or members of any committee be held responsible for any loss or damage to the property or person of exhibitors or other persons while on the fair grounds, whether said loss or damage shall arise from accident or any cause whatsoever. All diligence will be used by the officers to prevent loss or mishap to entries, but will not be responsible for any loss or mishap that may occur.
- Premiums totaling $950.00 in U. S. Defense Saving Stamps are offered to exhibitors through all Departments. See departments for premium distribution methods.

Livestock Division

Charlie F. Baker — General Superintendent

All beef cattle must be placed on exhibit any time Wednesday, October 15th, and remain on exhibit until Saturday morning, October 18th. Registration papers must be shown with each animal exhibited in all breed classes, or if animal is not registered the pedigree showing that the animal could be registered will be accepted. Dairy females may be unregistered.

All horses must be registered or purebred.

All livestock must be healthy and apparently free from disease or same will be rejected from one in charge.

Premiums amounting to $386.22 plus ribbons will be paid livestock and poultry exhibits on a point basis. The total number of points awarded in beef cattle, horses and mules, swine and poultry will be divided into the total money allotted to determine the amount of money earned on each point. The money value of each point multiplied by the number of points awarded to a particular exhibit is the premium which will be paid.
